

Anti-Americanism in our K12 Schools

Anti-Americanism has long been evident in higher education. But recently, it has spread from college campuses to other areas of American life.

Today it asserts itself in many forms—including critical race theory—in our government, in our K-12 schools, in our corporations, in the media, in sports, and even in our military.

The recent election in Virginia brought the corruption of American K-12 education, in particular, to the forefront of our national conversation.

The breakdown (especially among younger Americans) of informed patriotism—without which self-government is impossible—is not something we can allow to continue.

While there is reason to remain hopeful, there is much work to be done to reverse the current trends in the months and years ahead.

Education is where this attack on America began—and it is the battlefield on which we must engage the Left in defense of liberty and limited constitutional government.

1. Launch additional Hillsdale-affiliated classical K-12 charter schools nationwide and provide, free of charge, our American classical K-12 curriculum (including the new Hillsdale 1776 Curriculum) to thousands more American teachers and homeschoolers.

And your generous support is critical to our success. Here's why...

As I've written to you in the past, Hillsdale College conducts its educational outreach efforts on behalf of liberty—as it does all of its work—while refusing to accept one penny of government funding, not even indirectly in the form of federal or state student grants or loans.

So, to meet our ambitious year-end funding goal, we will need thousands of gifts between $25 and $100. This is the range in which most supporters give. We will also need a significant number of $500 to $1,000 donations. But contributions of any size are appreciated.

Since we only have days remaining in 2021 to fund this project for the coming year, we urgently need your help.

As the forces of anti-Americanism redouble their own efforts to undermine informed patriotism in our schools and our culture, and to subvert constitutionalism in our government, we must engage them ever more aggressively—including on the central battlefield of education.
