DNC Launches “People’s Cabinet” Shadow Government

The Democratic National Committee announced a bold new initiative with the launch of a rogue “shadow government” known as the People’s Cabinet. This move is seen as a direct challenge to President Donald Trump’s America First agenda, with DNC Chair Ken Martin spearheading what many critics call an attempt to derail the current administration’s efforts to restore common-sense policies.

The announcement follows Minnesota Governor Tim Walz’s recent call for a “shadow government” during a town hall in Eau Claire, Wisconsin, where he urged for “alternate press conferences” that would push Democrat-approved talking points. Now, Martin is turning that idea into an actual operation, claiming the project will expose “lies” and deliver “accurate information” to the American people.

Marketing the People’s Cabinet as a coalition of “experts, leaders, and everyday Americans,” the DNC is, in reality, assembling a group critics describe as comprising washed-up leftist bureaucrats, failed politicians, and radical activists. Supporters of President Trump argue that while the President is focused on securing elections, rebuilding the economy, and protecting American jobs, the Democrats are mobilizing an alternative team whose main goal is to sow confusion and disrupt conservative voices.

The People's Cabinet roster features some of the most controversial figures in the Democrat universe. Among them are:

- Robert Reich, a far-left economist and co-founder of a group known for class warfare and fearmongering.
- Mandela Barnes, who struggled to win over voters in Wisconsin and is now being repurposed to attack Trump's policies on a national scale.
- Heidi Heitkamp, a former senator eager to lecture rural America after facing electoral rejection.
- Martin O'Malley, a failed presidential hopeful rebranded as a "defender" of Social Security against perceived threats.

The initiative also includes a round-the-clock "rapid response" team designed to attack Trump's policies, disrupt his messaging, and drown out conservative voices online—all done under the banner of fighting "disinformation."

"I've been traveling across the country nonstop since I started this job, and what I hear over and over is that Americans want us to challenge Trump's unimpeded lies, confront his reckless agenda, and offer a better alternative," said DNC Chair Ken Martin.

"Trump has stacked his Cabinet with out-of-touch billionaires and know-nothing loyalists who are wreaking havoc on the lives of working people across this country, with total disregard for the harm they're causing our families – from stripping away their health care coverage, to jacking up their costs at the grocery store, to putting the lives of service members at risk.

"The People's Cabinet is made up of experts, leaders, and everyday Americans from across the country who will equip communities with the reliable, accurate information they need to fight back against the worst of the Trump and Republican agenda."
